MESSAGE FROM COURSE DIRECTORS

Dear Colleagues,

It is my pleasure to welcome you to the 3rd edition of the Fondazione Internazionale Menarini Asian Pacific Society of Cardiology (APSC) Emerging Leaders Scholarship Programme.

The Asia Pacific Region has increasingly been thrust into the spotlight of cardiology developments in the 21st century. Home to half of the world's population with some of the fastest growing and yet fastest aging populations, the region will only continue to grow depending on the progress in the field of cardiology. It becomes increasingly more important for us at the APSC to guide the next generation of leaders in spearheading the progress of Cardiology across the Asia Pacific region.

The FIM APSC Emerging Leaders Programme, which was initiated in 2017, provides a platform for emerging leaders who are committed and talented individuals, able to network, address and improve cardiovascular disease management in their respective communities. The APSC provides leadership guidance and professional development, facilitating all the important networking opportunities. With diverse backgrounds in more than 20 countries, the discussion on multiple disciplines in cardiology is robust. The programme features a truly global and diverse faculty comprising representatives from the American College of Cardiology, the European Cardiology Society, the World Heart Foundation, the Asian Pacific Society of Cardiology and other academia, plus practising senior cardiologists and surgeons who will cover a range of topics of relevance to their professional practise whether clinical research or administrative.

On day one of this year's programme, all the Emerging Leaders will present the challenges faced in their country, explaining the measures taken to counter these challenges with brainstorming of solutions and outcomes. They will then move into group discussion to address the issues raised and each group will make a presentation, assisted by the faculty members.

The faculty will address issues on:

- Building leaders for the future of cardiology
- Effective presentation
- The secret of success as a national cardiovascular society

On day two, the faculty will take the lead in addressing the following topics:

- Look young, stay young: Leading without burnout or premature aging
- Effective networking and fundraising for cardiological medicine
- Medical education and conflicts with the industry
- Building your academic reputation – Brand you
- Advocacy from both sides of the fence; from cardiologist to Minister and how to effectively engage the government
- Engaging Gen X of cardiologists: How? Why? When?
- Healthcare digital transformation in Korea
- Top 3 leadership tips for research success for the young cardiologist

The two faculty forums are dynamic platforms for exchange and in-depth conversation on:

- The APSC's role in helping Emerging Leaders overcome the challenges faced, and
- The leadership challenges in the Asia Pacific region.

We are looking forward to a fruitful and engaging discussion.
